By smithington7A highly enjoyable read. Herrick writes with humour and affection about the people he meets and the countryside through which he travels. The pace is leisurely and the emphasis is on slow food and quiet back roads. This book is great for the armchair traveller and food lover, but will also encourage we cyclists to stretch our legs and embark on a more distant adventure.

By OzzieCaroleLike all of Steven's previous cycling books, it feels like I'm riding each with them experiencing the highs and lows. Norway has been on my list for some time and this has inspired me to research more for our next European holiday. Highly recommend all of Steven's cycling books, even if you are not a cyclist. The books are inspirational and I really enjoy his humour and views on cycling, overly touristy places and slow adventures.

By Johan HorakI like his attitude. Being an Australian I expected boasting....Nothing. He pokes fun at them. Tells the story as it happens. I have learned a lot. And would definitely read more of his books. BTW I would probably plan to ride in The Netherlands as my first touring trip before attempting other. Got to start somewhere.

Award-winning author Steven Herrick journeys from Marseille on the French Mediterranean to the fjords of Norway on a bicycle - an epic 4,000 kilometre adventure through seven European countries. Accompanied by his wife, Cathie and their two hardy bicycles christened Bruce and Aiwa, this is a wandering odyssey through the heart of Western Europe. The author cycles up mountains, along atmospheric back roads and through major cities, sampling the delights of French food, Belgian and German beer, Dutch and Danish hospitality and the awe-inspiring landscape of Norway. 'Cycling North' is a bicycle adventure, a culinary safari and an entertaining ramble through the history and landscape of Europe.

About the AuthorSteven Herrick is one of Australia's most popular poets. His books for teens include "Love, Ghosts, Facial Hair; A Place Like This;" and "The Simple Gift."
