Steven Herrick : cycling to Bohemia: a cycling adventure across Europe (Euro Velo Series) (Volume 4) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised cycling to Bohemia: a cycling adventure across Europe (Euro Velo Series) (Volume 4):

down the names of a few towns I'd like to visit in the Czech Republic and northern France some day, and one or two towns in The Netherlands and Germany. But it wasn't gripping reading...there was no sense of flow or urgency from one scene to another. No real arc to the book. They started in St. Malo, France, they went into Belgium, The Netherlands, Germany, and then Prague. That's the tale. I found several grammar errors, which I really find irritating in a published book. It makes my teeth itch. I would like to have seen his wife a bit more clearly; her opinion was rarely expressed. I know she likes goat cheese salads and seems to prefer white wine to the beer that the author consumes daily, but otherwise, I know nothing about her...she was a shadow figure. Let's just say, I didn't find it a compelling read, and I read a couple of other books during the time I was carrying this one around on my Kindle. However, for someone contemplating a bicycle trip, it would be easy to follow the author's path and perhaps avoid some of the pitfalls he encountered. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Highly recommended. By smithington71 I read this on my daily commute. A lovely distraction from the glum faces in my train carriage. It made me want to get off at the next station, buy a bicycle and begin my own adventure. A well-written book that entertains and educates in equal measure. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Kindle Customer A really fun read.

Award-winning author Steven Herrick journeys from the wild coastline of Brittany in Northern France to the Bohemian splendour of Prague in Eastern Europe on a bicycle - an epic 2,500 kilometre adventure along rural back roads and beside the great rivers of Europe. Accompanied by his wife, Cathie and their two hardy bikes christened Jenny and Craig, this is an absorbing adventure across the heartland of the continent. The only pastime more important than cycling is sampling the culinary delights of French restaurants, German beer halls and the bars and cafes of Belgium, The Netherlands and the Czech Republic - from steak tartare to schnitzel; gateaux to goulash; and bordeaux to beer. The author never loses sight of his life's mantra, cycling is just an interlude between meals. Cycling to Bohemia is a bicycle adventure, a restaurant safari and a handbook for those who enjoy slow food, grassroots travel and long-distance cycling.

About the Author Steven Herrick is an Australian poet and author who has published twenty-two books for children and young adults. His books have twice won the NSW Premiers Literary Award (2000, 2005) and have been shortlisted eight times for Book of the Year in the prestigious Children's Book Council of Australia Book Awards.
