Erickson This little guide has just the right amount of information needed to make a decision about where to go with the kids! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Discover Washington with Kids By P. Garcia Good variety of things to do and well broken down by area. Most items contain a reasonable description with the pluses and minuses of the location/destination. 8 of 12 people found the following review helpful. Discover Washington With Kids By James Nash This book is indispensable if you want to have fun with your family! There are so many things to do in our own backyard that we aren't aware of and the authors have included just about everything!

This third edition of the state's most popular family guidebook is revised, updated and expanded to include all of the newest destinations. You've got the best information about the best places for kids twos thru tweens throughout Washington. This guide includes information about little-known places and reviews of popular family destinations. Listings include driving directions, internet information, hours, admission fees, wheelchair, stroller and disabled accessibility.

As a busy, working mother of two boys, ages 7 and 12, this book is just the thing I need to keep in my minivan. It's an emergency kit for any parent who's tired of the same old, same old. When the kids say, "we're bored" or "what can we do today?" Here's the answer! --Debra Prinzing, editor: The Northwest Gardeners' Resource Directory (Sasquatch Books); author, PNW Garden Survival Guide (Fulcrum Books) Whether you are a parent with a stroller or adult in a wheelchair, this is the book to answer the question, "Can we go there?" --Steve Johnston, editor of The Paralyzed Veterans of America/Northwest Outpost and Sunday Punch, Seattle Times columnist Over the years, Discover Washington with Kids has brought out the kid in me. Now with the help of this expanded new edition, I can explore the magic of Washington with my toddler grandson, "Mr. Jacob," surprising him with simple wonders from fishing at Les Davis Pier to the choo-choo train park in Kirkland. --Patti Payne, columnist, Puget Sound Business Journal, writer, consultant, radio personality About the Author Rosanne Cohn is the original author of Discover Seattle With Kids, first published in 1977, and is a freelance public relations and marketing consultant as well.
