Travel The Americas By FilmBy Ricky KimseyThis is unique travel book because his covers North and South America by movies that were filmed on both continents. You will learn where some of your favorite movies were filmed and where you can see some of these locations yourself.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Interesting but disappointingBy Paulette BuongirnoI may have read the description wrong but I was expecting a book about movie sites covering more area. I have traveled and visited many sites just for fun but this book was very limited in the area it covered.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. fun and intelligentBy Brad RI was in a local NYC bookstore and saw this title. it is so cool. it's a guide to locations where movie scenes were actually filmed. i bought it right there on the spot and put it to use. it's always fun to travel your own city through a new set of eyes. It also covers San Francisco and a bunch of cities in the South (Savannah, New Orleans, etc). i highly recommend!oh, and there are a ton of great color photos as well.Film + Travel North America, South America: Traveling the World Through Your Favorite Movies

Featuring color photographs of movie locations, sites, and landmarks, this guide for film buffs and travel lovers provides information about notable scenes from nearly 200 movies shot throughout North and South America. Report a fire at the hook ladder company #8 if you want to see Ghostbusters headquarters in New York City. When in San Francisco, stop for a cup of coffee at the caf where Steve McQueens Bullit meets an informant. Bring your own box of chocolates to Chippewa Square, Savannah, and reenact the iconic scenes from Forrest Gump. Visit the Marine Building in Vancouver and be transported to Clark Kents employer, the Daily Planet, in Smallville. Find out what part of Puerto Rico posed for The Lord of the Flies, why Madonna evaded Argentina when playing Eva Peron, and much, much more.

Places You've Seen at the Movies From the banjo and guitar face-off near the Chattooga River, where Deliverance was filmed, to Marilyn Monroe's billowing dress over a subway grate at Lexington Avenue and 52nd Street in New York in The Seven Year Itch, movie scenes often evoke a strong sense of place. The creators of Museyon Guides Film + Travel, a new travel guide trilogy, have taken this idea and run with it, locating some of the most memorable scenes from the movies and organizing them into books focusing on North and South America (198 films, including Gone With the Wind and The Official Story from Argentina); Europe (199 films, including Lawrence of Arabia with its desert scenes done in Spain); and Asia, Oceania and Africa (139 films, including Mad Max and Lost in Translation). Chapters are introduced by writers, producers, directors and historians and are full of color photography, history and trivia. Each book costs $15.95. In September, Museyon Music + Travel; ($17.95), a travel guide for those seeking out the best in global music, will hit the stores. ~ Hilary Howard, July 5, 2009 --The New York TimesBook Your Vacation Film + Travel: North America, South America; ($15.95, Museyon Guides) is part of the Museyon series subtitled A Curated Guide to Your Obsessions and that's exactly what this book does it leads the film fanatic on a tour of locales where famous and obscure movies have been shot. Longing to run the Chattooga River in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains from Deliverance? Want to swing by the Oak Bar in New York City's The Plaza Hotel where Cary Grant's character was abducted in North by Northwest? How about spending some time at Boone Hall Plantation outside of Charleston, S.C., where some scenes from The Notebook were done? Stills from the movies, as well as photos from the destinations, are included, along with additional information on the film or locale where available. The index lists the year and the country where the film was made and the DVD distributor. ~ Kyle Wagner, 06/21/2009 --The Denver PostFilm + Travel: North America, South America Museyon Guides, $15.95 It's always fun to see how your city appears on the big screen. In this entertaining guide, eight writers offer their cinematic take of movie locations: San Francisco, New York, the South, Mexico City, Puerto Rico, Canada, Argentina and Chile. Some of the sites are iconic (scenes from Steve McQueen's Bullitt, for example) while others are not as well known. Director Julie Taymor shot inside Frida Kahlo's house for her bio-pic Frida; in Mexico City. And then there's that ultimate chameleon of a country, Canada, which often on film pretends to be something that it is not: Alberta filled in for Wyoming in Brokeback Mountain; Winnipeg as 1950s-era New York in Capote; and Toronto for Chicago in Chicago. A fun guide for cinemaphiles. ~ June Sawyers, 7/19/09 --The Chicago TribuneAbout the AuthorMuseyon Guides are visually oriented travel guides, accessibly written for the greenhorn as well as the aficionado, featuring academic-quality information on artistic and cultural interests and obsessions.
