This book has lots of suggestions and good info but if you are spending just a few days in Rome it does not help you to choose what is most important and fun. Although it is organized alphabetically the out of town things are mixed up into the in town visits which is disconcerting to people without private transportation or time. It needs a map or 2 with all of the 68 things marked on it.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A few good tipsBy Two GirlsIt really isn't much of a book about traveling with kids in Rome as it a book just about traveling with kids period. Basically it says kids get board so bring games and try to keep the activities short.25 of 25 people found the following review helpful. My single favorite guidebook to Rome (and I'm a grownup!)By bensmommaWe took our 8-year-old son to Rome for 4 days this summer. In that short space we crammed a LOT of things that are in all the guidebooks - the Vatican, the Colisseum and Forum, the Pantheon, etc."Around Rome with Kids" added SEVERAL kid-friendly sites that we never saw in any other guidebook, including Fodor's big ones. For example:1) The Archaeabus - takes a tour to a park on the outskirts of the city where there are many ruins of Roman aqueducts, and goes right down the oldest stones on the Appian Way--in air-conditioned comfort;2) The "Plastico di Roma" - enormous scale model of Ancient Rome in the Musselini (sp?) era Museo di Civiltà Romana out in the EUR district3) The Time Elevator - expensive but fun simulator ride near the Piazza Venezia. Cheesy but a good antidote to the seriousness of the ruins. The best part, from the Mom perspective, is that in addition to hours, prices, and directions to each site, the authors point out kid-friendly restaurants and pit stops nearby. You are never more than a few yards from a decent gelato...

Each book focuses on 68 terrific ideas for family days, from museums and puppet theaters to skyscrapers and parks. Written by parents who live in the cities they cover, these books are smart about what kids like--and about what parents need. All the details for planning are included: addresses, phone numbers, admission prices, and age-appropriateness. "Hey, Kids!" info boxes provide fun facts and interesting trivia about the destination, and "Kid-Friendly Eats" features recommend three or four places to grab a bite to eat nearby. Fun to read and easy to use, these handy little guides make it easy to plan an enjoyable, hassle-free day with children in the world's most popular cities. They're perfect idea books for every city parent and grandparent, and indispensable aids for families on vacation.
