before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Four Corners [Trail of the Ancients] (National Geographic Destination Map):

4 of 4 people found the following review helpful. Excellent map to plan your exploration By C. Orav This was an excellent map. I used it to establish my two week excursion of the 4 corners area. No other map comes close. I was primarily interested in the national parks, national monuments, and the culture and scenery that the ancient ones lived in. The map fulfilled these needs. I mapped out my route, followed it, and was well rewarded in my discoveries. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Used this map and liked it a lot during our trip to the Four ... By S. Soule Used this map and liked it a lot during our trip to the Four Corners, but you still need a real map, since it didn't include a lot of the names of smaller routes. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. and a good overview map By Frank Seiler Indestructible, and a good overview map, wish it included a little more area such as Zion Ntl Monument

Waterproof Tear-Resistant Travel Map National Geographic's Four Corners Region Destination Map strikes the perfect balance between map and guidebook and is ideal for a wide range of travelers. The Four Corners Region is the only place in the United States where four states intersect at one point: Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah. The map guide seeks to contribute to the economic health of communities in the Four Corners Region by promoting geotourism: tourism that sustains or enhances the geographical character of a place its environment, culture, aesthetics, heritage and the well-being of its residents. The front side of the Four Corners Destination Map reveals a map of the region spanning from Dixie National Forest in southeastern Utah; to Great Sand Dunes National Park and Preserve and San Isabel National Forest in southwestern Colorado; to Santa Fe National Forest and Cibola National Forest in northwestern New Mexico; to Coconino National Forest in northeastern Arizona. At the center of the map is the Four Corners Monument, where visitors can stand on the only spot in the United States where four states meet. The map also includes a detailed road network and areas of interest such as Indian Reservations and National Parks, Forests, Monuments and Recreation Areas. Archaeological sites, historic sites, museums, scenic areas, geotourism locations, state parks and other points of interest are also featured. The reverse side of the map provides invaluable content for travelers with individual maps and descriptions highlighting archaeological sites, festivals, museums and events; outdoor recreation opportunities; water and geologic features; and arts, music and cultural points of interest. The map also features important travel tips and beautiful photographs showcasing some of many ways travelers can experience this enchanted landscape. Key Features: Chart of the Four Corners Region's national parks including services and contact information Colorful photographs featuring the region's diverse terrain National parks and monuments, geotourism places of interest, historic sites and more Descriptive content and individual maps highlighting archaeological sites, outdoor recreation opportunities, water and geologic features, and arts, music and cultural points of interest Every Destination Map is printed on durable synthetic paper, making them waterproof, tear-resistant and tough capable of withstanding the rigors of any kind of travel.
