Jason Smart : From Here to Anywhere: 16 days, 16 countries, 16 budget flights: The story of one cheapskate and zero frills before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised From Here to Anywhere: 16 days, 16 countries, 16 budget flights: The story of one cheapskate and zero frills:

The rule is simple: Jason Smart must travel on the cheapest flight of the day. The only proviso is that each new destination must be to a different country. From Here to Anywhere takes him on a madcap adventure through 16 European nations in just sixteen days. Along the way, he visits a place called Moss in Norway and sees the most depressing street in Europe in Belgium. He wanders through a Syrian refugee camp in Belgrade, crosses a UN-protected border in Cyprus, smashes a bottle of beer in a Hungarian church and drinks some Guinness in Dublin, all the while battling airport queues, cheap coffee and his fellow passengers. Jason Smart is the published author of nine other travel books: The Red Quest Flashpacking through Africa The Balkan Odyssey Temples, Tuk-tuks and Fried Fish Lips Panama City to Rio de Janeiro Bite Size Travel in North America Crowds, Chaos, Colour Rapid Fire Europe Meeting the Middle East
