From Brand: Lone Pine Publishing : The Canadian Mountaineering Anthology before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Canadian Mountaineering Anthology:

63 pieces range from Conrad Kain's classic account of the first ascent of Mount Robson to Sharon Wood's thoughts on climbing Mount Everest.

About the Author Sid Marty is a former park warden who has been a full-time freelance writer and singer-songwriter for 30 years. He has been a frequent contributor to "Canadian Geographic" and has also written for radio and television. His books about life in the mountains and the Canadian prairies have been consistent bestsellers. His 2007 book, "The Black Grizzly of Whiskey Creek", earned Sid his second nomination for a Governor General's Award. He lives near Pincher Creek, Alberta, at the foot of the Rocky Mountains.
