

[FREE] The Coldest Places on Earth (First Facts: Extreme Planet)

The Coldest Places on Earth (First Facts: Extreme Planet)

Jennifer M. Besel

*DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF | ePub

#8145874 in Books First Facts Books 2010-01-01Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 8.25 x 8.25 x .50l, .50
Binding: Library Binding24 pages | File size: 74.Mb

Jennifer M. Besel : The Coldest Places on Earth (First Facts: Extreme Planet) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Coldest Places on Earth (First Facts: Extreme Planet):

Visit a hotel made of ice. Travel to a city where metal eyeglasses freeze to faces. By opening this book you will journey to places on earth where temperatures reach extreme lows. You may need your mittens for this one!

From School Library JournalGrade 1-3These compelling but slightly flawed books build short narratives around data on various unenviable records. Coldest, for example, invites readers to imagine living in a freezer, briefly explains the reasons for the temperature of some places, and then gets to the meat of the books: seven spreads covering the world's most frigid environs, such as Mount McKinley (whose exact location is unfortunately not provided); and Yakutsk, Russia, the world's coldest city. The texts are supplemented by sometimes banal Extreme Fact sidebars; by world maps (which lack country borders) pinpointing the extreme places; and by large, clear photographs. Glossary words are defined on the page on which they are used, a helpful feature. (c) Copyright 2010. Library Journals LLC, a wholly owned subsidiary of Media Source, Inc. No redistribution permitted.About the AuthorJennifer Besel has the best job in the worldwriting and editing books for kids! Her book The Captivating, Creative, Unusual History of Comic Books was a 2011 notable book from the National Council for the Social Studies, the Children's Book Council, and the TriState Young Adult Committee. It was also a 2010 VOYA honor book. Jen reads, writes, and plays in Mankato, Minnesota, with her husband and two sons.