About the Author

Terrance Zepke has been involved in many aspects of the travel industry. Her parents ignited her lifelong love of travel by taking her with them on many worldwide adventures, starting when she was just three years old. After receiving B.A. and M.A. degrees in Journalism, Zepke became an award-winning freelance travel writer/photographer who traveled extensively to all seven continents. Later, she became a travel agent and author of several travel guidebooks, but Terrance always dreamed of writing the ultimate "how-to travel the world cheap" reference and spent ten years researching and writing this book, in which she shares valuable tips, practical advice, and reveals insider information that's rarely disclosed to the public.
