

[E-BOOK] The Eucalyptus Dance

The Eucalyptus Dance

Ken Barlow

*audiobook / ebooks / Download PDF / ePub / DOC

Download

Read Online

#8383013 in Books 2007-12-21 Original language: English 8.50 x .68 x 5.50l, #File Name: 1425156940298 pages | File size: 18.Mb

Ken Barlow : The Eucalyptus Dance before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Eucalyptus Dance:

At fifty plus Ken Sue fell in love with a small rural Portuguese mountain village on their first holiday together and took a decision changing their lives for ever.

About the Author Ken Barlow was born in Manchester in 1947 and christened Cyril, which made for a very individual and interesting childhood. His class was the first intake in Infant One at the new post-war Barton Clough County Primary School, leaving after the 11+ for Great Stone Park, then entering printing at 15. He spent several years in his early 20's travelling Europe and working in restaurants. After arriving back in the UK and suffering a broken neck in a freak motor accident, before returning to printing at The Reading Evening Post. More recently he was the landlord of the Swan at Wycombe Marsh, where his son, Christopher, was born: then the Castle Public House in Basingstoke for over 12 years, with Christopher and his two stepdaughters, Louise and Nicola. Afterwards he set up his print company, before embarking on this journey. Sue Cooper (nee Bradford) was born and educated in Liverpool at Heatherlea and Belvedere Schools. On leaving, she gained experience as a secretary at Sefton General Hospital before moving to Switzerland with The World Health Organisation. She returned to London and was employed as personnel assistant for a firm of Management Consultants, married and moved to Kingswood, Surrey, where her two daughters, Lucy and Mary, were born. After working at an international agricultural company for a number of years, the office was re-located to Berkshire. She met Ken two years later before moving out to Portugal. Ken and Sue now live happily together in Portugal on 5 * acres of land, and split their time between tending the fields, gardens and vegetable patch, the two holiday apartments, printing business, writing, and in their spare time they produce home made chutneys, jams, wine and Jeropiga. They share a mutual enthusiasm for life, as well as a finely honed passion for entertaining and cooking, especially Indian curries.